ALL THIS AND More

SUSAN WEINER

From the wise to the just-plain-silly, the poems of All This and More open up to a world of marvel and wonder. Frolicking pirates sing side-by-side with shimmering octopuses in the sea, occupying a world where God beckons you, where splendor still exists despite its brokenness. Let your heart exult in poetry that presents God's creation as wonderfully bright and full of promise, through all the happy and the sad.

About the Author

Susan Weiner lives close to the Potomac River in the Washington, DC area, where her study overlooks a horse paddock on the farm next door. She had several years of graduate study at UCLA in Seventeenth-Century English History, yet, as a writer she is often engaged in children's literature, where she reveals that anything can happen and probably will. In her spare time, Susan likes to knit and read about Christianity and ancient history.
