"Imaginatively conceived and lovingly executed, these stories of mice friends Henrietta and Jasper and their encounters with real and fictional creatures catapulted me back into my childhood. Nancy Atkins' charming illustrations complement Helen Williamson's lovely prose; the combination offers a reading experience likely to live in children's memories."

—Jay Strafford, retired reporter, editor, writer and book critic, The Richmond News Leader and the Richmond Times-Dispatch

About the Author

Helen L. Williamson was born in Holywood, Northern Ireland. She received her B.A. and M.A. from Trinity College in Dublin, Ireland. For many years, she taught creative writing in Charlottesville, Virginia, where she lives with her husband. She is the author of Tales from Balladhoon, A Pineapple Dream and Other Nonsense, Higgledy-Piggledy Thoughts, and I Just Met a Dinosaur.

About the Illustrator

Nancy Taylor Atkins lives in Williamsburg, Virginia with her family. After graduating from Furman University, she worked in an experiential outdoor program for at-risk youth. In addition to owning a local nutritional store, Nancy enjoys creating with clay, paint, and mixed media. She has participated in art shows and has been commissioned to make tiled installations. She is the illustrator of A Pineapple Dream and Other Nonsense, Higgledy-Piggledy Thoughts, and I Just Met a Dinosaur.
