ELEVEN DOLLARS AND A HALF TANK OF GAS

In this candid memoir of a classic American boyhood, Greg Drost—teacher, family man, and self-taught surfer—takes a moment to look back on the events that led him to where he is today. From summer hijinks and schoolboy woes, through hardship and heartbreak, and down the long and winding road to self-discovery, this delightful collection of anecdotes is more than the story of one man's coming of age. It is an examination of all those moments, great and small, that shape us into the people we grow up to be.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Greg Drost grew up the middle child of three boys on the outskirts of Cleveland, Ohio. For the past seventeen years, he has been an elementary school teacher in North Carolina, Nevada and Virginia. He currently resides in Northern Virginia with his wife and two sons.
