Impressions Beyond the Terminal Cancer Diagnosis

By Norma Woody

In this collection, as in her first book, Impressions Behind the Pink Ribbon, Norma explores a range of emotions and trials only a woman facing her own death can experience. A true and rich testament that only the examined life is worth living, she probes the depths and meaning of honesty, hope, friendship, and faith, as well as her own fear, isolation, heartache, and failures. For Norma, life was a kaleidoscope of miracles and experiences she felt compelled to capture in her writing, and had she lived, she would have penned many more books. We regret that this is her final manifesto of life, love, and hope.

About the Author

Through sheer will, resolve, and deep faith, Norma Woody was able to complete a draft of this, her second memoir, while in the relentless grip of Stage IV metastatic cancer. After a long and grueling battle, she passed away in September 2016. To honor Norma's labor of love, her husband Richard worked with her publisher to assemble, edit, and publish these essays posthumously.
